I am about to have tumbled travertine marble installed for my kitchen back splash. I like the look of it without grout. Can we butt it together and not use grout? Thank you.

Dear Carole:

It all depends on how intensively you will use your kitchen. If you plan to cook a lot, then you need not only to grout, but to fill the holes of the tiles, as well. If your kitchen is only a show-place, then everything is fine and dandy. J

Now remember, it's never too early to think about the proper maintenance of your stone. The issue of what you'll be doing day in and day out to your stone is "as it should be intuitive" vastly more important than its sealing (if and when possible and/or advisable) and it's all too often neglected. As you can tell by reading many of this site's postings, you're not likely to get good information about routine care from your dealer or installer. Don't become another statistic!
