Dear Maurizio, so glad I found your web site for marble cleaning products !! I need your advice-you really seem to be an expert on marble. We are getting ready to install Dark Green marble tiles 12x12 from India for my bathroom for walls and floors..what would be the best epoxy to use? And do you sell it as well. Is the Imperial Green marble a bad choice for a bathroom..? I hear all the negativ things about it ... Thanks so much,Yvonne

Dear Yvonne:

No, I don't sell setting materials and/or glues.

That said, the stone itself has very little to do as to whether or not you will enjoy it. The most important factor is the way it will be installed. Even the best stone in the wild, wild world will turn into a heap of sorry junk if not installed properly.

Now remember, it's never too early to think about the proper maintenance of your stone. The issue of what you'll be doing day in and day out to your stone is â€“ as it should be intuitive â€“ vastly more important than its sealing (if and when possible and/or advisable) and it's all too often neglected. As you can tell by reading many of this site's postings, you're not likely to get good information about routine care from your dealer or installer. Don't become another statistic! By logging into the Helpful Hints section of our website at: http://www.mbstone.com/HH_promo/helpful_hints.htm , you will be able to get the short version of our maintenance guidelines at no charge. The full version of it â€“ a 7-page document considered by many as an industry benchmark â€“ is available in pay-per-download format in our Educational Literature section at: <http://www.mbstone.com/literature/literature.htm> .

And remember, every single penny of the cost of the literature will be used to support this site and its cause: your cause.

While you are in the â€œHelpful Hintsâ€• section, do spend some time reading all of the interesting FREE articles you'll find in there!

Finally, keep in mind that we need your support to help us helping you!
