I am wanting to use travertine tiles for my kitchen countertops, but they have pits/holes, I was wondering if there is a product to fill the pits/holes with something clear that is safe for the kitchen, but can also be sealed to look like the look of the pits/holes, please help.

Dear Bernie:

Yep! Clear latex-based siliconized caulking material. Liquid-proof, stain-less, see-through, easy to apply and to clean off. What more do you want?!... J

If you can't find it locally, try this website: <http://www.inland-inc.com/>

Now remember, it's never too early to think about the proper maintenance of your stone. The issue of what you'll be doing day in and day out to your stone is "as it should be intuitive" vastly more important than its sealing (if and when possible and/or advisable) and it's all too often neglected. As you can tell by reading many of this site's postings, you're not likely to get good information about routine care from your dealer or installer. Don't become another statistic! By logging into the Helpful Hints section of our website at: http://www.mbstone.com/HH_promo/helpful_hints.htm, you will be able to get the short version of our maintenance guidelines at no charge. The full version of it "a 7-page document considered by many as an industry benchmark" is available in pay-per-download format in our Educational Literature section at: <http://www.mbstone.com/literature/literature.htm>.

And remember, every single penny of the cost of the literature will be used to support this site and its cause: your cause.

While you are in the "Helpful Hints" section, do spend some time reading all of the interesting FREE articles you'll find in there!

Finally, keep in mind that we need your support to help us helping you!
