Your site has a lot of information about countertops that are not black. Can this same situation occur to other granite products - tombstones, for instance?

Dear Linda:

Yes, unfortunately. The criminal activity of malicious stone doctoring is going on strong and has no boundary.

In the land of the easy suing, I still have to find a cheated consumer that's willing to take the matter all the way. Most of the time, when a consumer won't take the story and a song (and at time the arrogant pressure) delivered by the criminals, they will give in, substitute the product, and chalk it up to "the cost of doing business". With all the money they make out of that garbage, they can easily afford that.

Does the world need marblecleaning.org o what?!...
