Maurizio ... Installed Kitchen Counttops in Limestone. Do not like the "yellow" look of the stone. Have a cutting board out of same stone ... on back of the board, the limestone is nice and beige and not at all yellow. Looks like the finishing process made it yellow. How can I make my countertops look like the back of the limestone cutting board? Is there a way to remove the finishing process? Thank you so much for your help! Marcia
Dear Marcia:

I'm a bit baffled here... you're making reference to "the finishing process" that might have your stone turn yellow...

Is there something that I should know?

I mean, a "finishing process" that I don't anything about and you're aware of? Something that your fabricator applied to your stone, perhaps?...

Please elaborate if you want me to venture an intelligent answer...

May I ask you now to please read our Statement of Purpose that you can find at:

Ciao and good luck,
