I've notice in reading some of you question and answers, that you don't think alot of the professionals are properly educated on the care and maintance of stone. Please advice were I can get the proper education for stone maintance and refinishing. Thank you, I look forward to hearing from you.

Dear Don:

Yes, you're right: I don't believe that the majority of the stone trade operators know much about stone and its requirements. If they did, we wouldn't be receiving so many queries, would we?

Of course, there's a minority who do, but they're rather the exception than the rule.
